1.B Gazetteers

Lists places, usually that existed at the time published, gives locations and often interesting stats about places; as well as, information on local parishes/churches, schools and civic offices. The Library holds many historical gazetteers; search using the term “gazetteer” and the place name: country, state or province, or larger sized city. Many of these historical gazetteers can be found online at Internet Archive.

6.B.II Nova Scotia

Only the census records of Nova Scotia for 1861 and 1871 are complete for all parts of the province. The earlier records do not cover every district and generally list heads of household only, together with details as to the size of the family, acreage farmed, occupation, trade or profession of the householder. The first census to list the name of each individual with details as to age, sex, country or province of birth, religion, and marital status is that of 1871.

1. Census of Nova Scotia, 1827; Census of District of Pictou, 1818 [HIL-GOV L33FP73 C396 1827]
Arranged alphabetically by surname and includes all extant portions of the census. Only the compilation for the District of Sydney (Antigonish County) has not been included. Researchers interested in the 1827 District of Sydney listing should consult the Report of Board of Trustees of the Public Archives of Nova Scotia, 1938, Appendix B., pp. 23 - 67
[HIL-GOV L33FP73 R426b1933/39]
2. Nova Scotia 1770 Census [HIL-STACKS CS88 .N6 R52]

(Before 1859, wills were probated either by the province-wide Court of Probate or the local Surrogate Courts. The Court of Probate (Series RG22-155) handled estates with property valued over £5 or that extended over two or more Districts. The Surrogate Courts handled smaller estates with property within one District. With the abolition of the Court of Probate in 1858 the Surrogate Courts assumed complete responsibility for estate actions.)
